Tuesday, October 13 • 7:00 pm
MORRISTOWN HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

Join us as Dr. Uhls enlightens us with her research on how digital media impacts the emotional, social & academic well-being of children at home and in school. She'll share solutions on how to help children safely and productively navigate the digital world.

Dr. Uhls will also moderate a Q&A discussion between the parent community and guest panelists:

Erica Hartman, Supervisor of Technology Integration, Morris School District

Dr. Michael Giuliano, Child & Adolescent Psychiatrist, Morristown Medical Center

ABOUT DR. UHLS: Yalda T. Uhls, MBA, Ph.D, is an award winning child psychologist researcher, author and leading expert in how media affects children. She is a balanced voice in helping parents and educators navigate the overwhelming landscape of opinions, research, conversation, and misinformation surrounding the impact of media on children. In addition to her consulting work, Dr. Uhls works with Common Sense Media and does research with UCLA. Her research is frequently featured in The New York Times and she contributes regularly to The Huffington Post, NPR & The Wall Street Journal. To learn more about her, please visit www.yaldatuhs.com.

This event is free and open to the public. RSVP at bit.ly/YUhls is requested but not required.

*Books will be available at a discounted price, cash only.
